The show has given almost $700,000 to St. Jude since 1999. Last year the show had 1,248 entries and it is moving to a four day show this year to accommodate growth. Joyce Webster, who is the show founder, has created a well laid out plan that is instrumental in the success of the show. She plans to retire in five years and is offering ASHBA the opportunity to partner with the show and eventually take it over after she retires to ensure the show continues beyond her retirement. It was discussed that the show would be an incredible marketing tool that would provide ASHBA with another gold standard program and strengthen the pathway from lessons to the show ring. Joyce would continue to administer the show until her retirement and requested that the beneficiary of the show remain St. Jude.
